THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF ARCHITECTURE STUDENTS

The global voice of architecture students, connecting education, practice, and the built environment.

AIAS is an independent, nonprofit, student-run organization representing more than 54,000 architecture students across 175 active chapters annually in 29 countries. We advance architectural education and professional connection at a global scale through leadership, design, and service.

Student Leadership

Developing the next generation of engaged leaders across architecture schools and programs

Industry Connection

Direct engagement between students and firms, organizations, and product partners

Education & Advocacy

Advancing architectural education and student experience

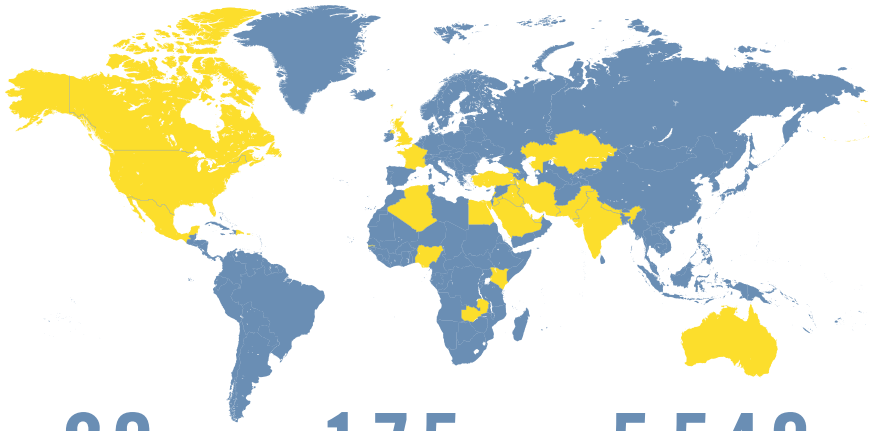

Global Community

Connecting students across stages of education, schools, and countries

Our Collegiate Associates gain year-round visibility with the next generation of architects and designers. Showcase your programs to prospective students while strengthening your connection with current students and the broader architecture community.
