

AIAS Partners with WiiN to Bring Architectural Competitions to Membership

Washington, DC – September 29, 2017 – The American Institute of Architecture Students (AIAS) is excited to partner with WiiN (WiiN-Contest.com), the first platform to share, inventory and diffuse calls for ideas and contests for students and young professionals.

WiiN has created a digital space that will give AIAS members access to all of the competitions available worldwide. Not only do they focus on architectural competitions, but photography, writing, and other competitions can be found on their website for any interest a member may have.

AIAS Executive Director Nick Serfass says, "Access to competitions is a core part of the AIAS programming portfolio. Teaming with WiiN helps facilitate greater awareness among AIAS members about the robust competition opportunities available in today's market."

The partnership has launched on aias.org/competitions and will populate related architectural competitions directly to the AIAS website. Further searches can be done by visiting WiiN's website directly.
